

GrumpBee

Mining Bee

Bees help make our food!

GrumpBee

Mining bees dig complex ground tunnels where each female builds her own nest. Some species share tunnels they defend together. Their deep nests help them survive in harsh habitats. Female mining bees have velvety hair on their forehead, which scientists believe they use to communicate with each other underground.

Pollinating

5

Survival

7

Defense

5

Specialization

8

Bee Powers